Fiserv's Interactive Technologies Unit Licenses Advantage Fee System to National City; Automated Fee Billing and Revenue Management Solution Meets Complex Banking Fee Challenges

SUMMIT, N.J.--Oct. 4, 2005--Fiserv, Inc. (Nasdaq:FISV) said its Interactive Technologies business unit has licensed the Advantage Fee System to National City Corporation (NYSE:NCC). National City was ranked among the top 10 U.S. bank holding companies in 2005 by the American Banker newspaper.

As part of the agreement, National City will license the Advantage Fee System software to automate transaction processing and to streamline fee calculation, invoicing and revenue management for the trust and wealth management areas of its banking operations.

National City was impressed by the calculation capabilities of Advantage. "After evaluating available options, we found the Advantage Fee System to be the right fit for our organization," said Larry Mick, team leader of Trust System Replacement and Money Movement at National City.

Thomas Dackow, president of Interactive Technologies, added, "We are delighted that National City has chosen the Advantage Fee System. They join an international community of more than 60 leading financial organizations that have turned to Advantage to satisfy their fee billing and revenue management needs."
